The most important aspects that consumers look for in an online marketplace is trust and ease of transactions. Whether it is usability, customer management, transactions, or supply, ecommerce ticks all the right boxes as far as performance is concerned. By the year 2021, the global retail ecommerce sales are going to touch about $5 trillion and in another two decades, almost 95% of the world’s shoppers will be using the online marketplace. The silver lining amidst this all is the emergence of a bridge to connect consumers with businesses and allow a smooth transaction of cash.
