MELBOURNE, FLORIDA, UNITED STATES, February 10, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Florida Songwriters Association is gearing up to offer a virtual workshop Saturday, April 17, 2021 that will help passionate songwriters learn and sharpen their songwriting skills. Florida Songwriters

Association promotes creativity and welcomes songwriters from all genres of music and skill levels. From professional to amateurs, the Florida Songwriters Association is committed to educational growth and protecting the rights within the songwriting profession.

For their first official virtual workshop of 2021, attendees will learn the latest techniques used by today's songwriters from our talented panel of keynote speakers, which includes Billy Chapin, Serona Elton, Deborah Wolf, Pat O'Connor, and Michael Epstein. Attendees will gain insights from our speakers, who are industry professionals with many experiences to share. Their extraordinary backgrounds provide the necessary tools to unlock the full creative process that enhances authentic songwriting. This workshop will offer a full breakdown of critical subjects, including digital mechanical royalties, music supervision, music publishing, intellectual property, and the Recording Academy for Artists.

With a dedication to motivating and educating the next generation of songwriters, the Florida Songwriters Association is proud to provide access to this incredible opportunity. The songwriting industry can be challenging to work through alone, but with proper guidance, your talent can be polished and perfected for greater possibilities. With sessions that guide you to make decisions based on your strengths, as well as motivate you to elevate your craft further, there is no limit to the knowledge you can unveil to use towards future projects. Producing meaningful songwriting that fosters passion and resonates with an audience is a powerful tool. Learn how you can do the same, while meeting like-minded individuals who are equally passionate for the art of songwriting.
