Governor Cuomo is taking criticism from officials in both major political parties for blocking transparency about Covid-19 nursing home deaths. A growing chorus of critics are expressing concern the governor is responsible for thousands of needless deaths due to mismanagement of the New York State government response to the pandemic. A Cuomo administration official said they withheld information from state officials over fears of a Federal probe.

This isn't the first time that Cuomo tried to dodge accountability. In 2014, the Governor shut down a commission that he had formed to investigate political corruption. This prompted the United States attorney at the time, Preet Bharara, to rebuke Governor Cuomo for dismissing the allegations of public corruption.

The Novel Coronavirus that emerged in 2019 has killed almost 500,000 Americans and two and a half million worldwide according to Johns Hopkins University. Governor Cuomo is coming under increasing scrutiny as more information comes to light about his handling of the pandemic.

Larry Sharpe has called on Governor Cuomo's Administration to take responsibility for:

- Forcing nursing homes to accept coronavirus patients, which directly resulted in tens of thousands of preventable deaths
- Undercounting preventable nursing home deaths by as much as 50%
- Refusing responsibility for the actions of his administration
- Creating a climate of intimidation and fear
- Enforcing unproven lockdowns that destroy businesses

"Cuomo's desperate desire to seem like the perfect ruler encourages corruption and lies. When you project perfection, you ensure deception. He should take responsibility for his power-hungry culture that created an indifference for human life." - Larry Sharpe

While celebrating winning an Emmy, Governor Cuomo has not been honest with the people of New York. It is time for transparency and a full, independent investigation into the Cuomo administration and their handling of the coronavirus pandemic.
