

Interactive pre-conference workshop announced for Injectable Drug Delivery 2021

SMi Reports: There will be a workshop on 'Developing Apps for Connected Drug Delivery Devices- a practical and integrated HF approach

LONDON, LONDON BRIDGE , UNITED KINGDOM, February 16, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- SMi is proud to present the Injectable Drug Delivery Pre-Conference Virtual Workshop on 11th May 2021. In this workshop the facilitators will share their experiences, as human factors (HF) specialists, of medical App development hosted by Team Consulting.

It is true that the core methods and objectives of HF are tried and tested, however the wireless connectivity and information technology that allows us to make mobile 'human-like' systems is really new. And its potential is almost blinding.

New technology both demands and builds new development skillsets. There are roles that exist now that weren't dreamed of until recently: for example, the "UX writer".

Our experience is that the tried and testing mindset, approaches and techniques of HF have a very important role to play in the new space of medical App development.

Benefits of attending:

This workshop will offer practical knowledge of the HFE mindset, tools and methods that are key to the development of successful Apps.

In particular, we'll cover:

- Development methods for 'human-like' systems
- Approaches to prototyping: designs as research tools
- Observational, simulated-use research
