

Chicago Businesswoman Celebrates Authors and Creatives When It Is Needed Most

Chicago-based innovator, Julie Lokun, continues facilitating the dreams of men and women worldwide. Lokun celebrates the prolific voices of upcoming authors

CHICAGO, IL, USA, February 18, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In the middle of a global pandemic, when the book publishing business has come to a creeping crawl, a Chicago woman is making artists' dreams come true. Julie Lokun, the owner of Crown and Compass Coaching, has recently added Media Queens Publishing to her list of entrepreneurial accomplishments. Lokun has teamed up with writer/editor Nicole Easton to celebrate authors and creatives who Empower, Educate and Entertain. They are shining a bright light on up-and-coming artists. In their first month, they have launched two titles and have two more books releasing before the end of March.

Media Queens Publishing embraces the traditional publishing model, working one-on-one with its authors to bring manuscripts to life. Lokun states, "We understand the frustrations of creatives and authors. This community of talent pours their hearts into their work to meet with a financially depressed industry that is hyper-competitive. Brilliance is being lost-when authors, in particular, are getting rejection after rejection. The objective of Media Queens is to elevate the talent of authors and creatives, then present their works to the world. We accept proposals that align with our mission of growth and positivity and celebrate humans on the verge of change."

Lokun is proud to announce that she has assembled a dream team that brings an eclectic voice to her innovative positioning. "I have brought together female professionals that understand many different points of view. These women embody cross-sections of America. Their perspectives include those of women of all ages, from different ethnic, and social-economic,
