

Lisa T. Miller, Top Healthcare Consultant, Launches Podcast for Healthcare Leaders

"The Healthcare Leadership Experience with Lisa Miller" offers insights into healthcare management and improving professional performance

WALL TOWNSHIP, N.J., USA, February 22, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Lisa T. Miller, one of the leading healthcare consultants in the US, today announced that she has launched a podcast, The Healthcare Leadership Experience with Lisa Miller. The podcast is intended for healthcare leaders. It offers programming that encourages listeners to think differently and learn how to improve their personal and organizational performance. Miller is Founder and CEO of VIE Healthcare Consulting, a company that has been helping healthcare organizations improve their financial outcomes for over 20 years.

"My goal with the podcast is to provide discussions with outstanding individuals," explained Miller. "The content will be diverse and thought-provoking, but also actionable. You'll learn new strategies and best practices. We'll be sharing ideas you can chew on, and then utilize in your career and healthcare organization."

The podcast features innovators and leaders within healthcare as well as from other relevant industries. Episodes will focus on both the business and clinical sides of healthcare, including probing dialogues on strategy, finance, marketing, leadership and communication, patient satisfaction and more. Miller added, "This is the time for a new way of thinking about healthcare as a business. The pandemic and the economic crisis are putting pressure on healthcare organizations as never before. Leadership is facing great challenges to deliver financial results while also elevating the standard of care. This is not an easy thing to pull off, but it is possible. My guests will explain how it's done."

Debut Episodes

The podcast has debuted with a collection of initial episodes. Early listener response has been quite positive. For instance, in "Harnessing a Disruptive Mindset in Healthcare," Miller speaks with Charlene Li, the best-selling author and speaker. Li, who has written six books, shares about her latest work, The Disruption Mindset, Why Some Organizations Transform While Others Fail. The episode focuses on the subject of leadership in disruptive times and why disruption is better than innovation in many cases. Li reveals why writing a manifesto is better than a mission statement and stresses the importance of taking risks and being out of one's comfort zone—and why this is great for patient care.

Miller then speaks with Adam Lorton, a healthcare data consultant in “Analyzing Hospital Data and Population Health Strategy.” Lorton is the author of The Healthcare Data Hiring Handbook - All the tools you need to add new analytical talent to your team. The episode delves into Lorton’s start as a hospital pay-for-performance analyst. Miller and Lorton explore pay-for-performance contracts and the role of the profitability analyst. They also discuss the importance of having a great data analyst and how to hire the right people for this role.

The “Being Intentional with Your Hospital Supply Chain Strategy” episode features an interview with Vincent Matozzo, a Corporate Supply Chain & Strategic Sourcing Leader at Yale New Haven Health. Here, Miller and Matozzo discuss data analytics in the healthcare supply chain and how to strategize for optimal outcomes using analytics. Their conversation gets into the issues related to managing strategic initiatives in the pandemic, the value of peer groups and the importance of the supply chain in the C Suite.
