Virtual Town Hall, "What now? Where do we go from here?" will ask questions such as how the new administration will benefit the African American Community? Executive director of Intentional Talk Radio Network, Yolanda Williams, also urges "It is imperative that we own our own path and stop waiting on permission. We must understand that we must be the change that we all want to see."

Intentional Talk Radio Network wishes to create sustainable methods that will begin to change the narrative in the African American community. It is an important mission with one easy step -- assisting to spread the word about this upcoming virtual event you will know the who, what, when, where and why. This is an opportunity to become educated and to create change that we all want to see in our communities.

In the words of our dearly beloved, Civil Rights icon, Congressman John M. Lewis, it is time for us to make "GOOD TROUBLE" for change. Now that we are moving in a new direction, we must stress the importance of bringing ("Good Trouble") change to our country, states Yolanda Williams founder of ITRN.

Collette Williams, Executive Director, Co-Founder and Host of Intentional Talk Radio Network

In 2015, Ken Strauther and Yolanda C. Strauther-Williams started a weekly talk show on the Black Talk Radio Network. This program was designed to address the issues people face in the Black Community and beyond, including poverty, crime, racism, jobs, education and apathy. The network has developed a strong following by bringing positive messages to the community and a variety of programming that is compelling, motivating and stimulating. The Intentional Talk Radio Network is bringing its unique programming to the masses. They carry the tag line - "We're Taking Control of the Narrative in Our Community." After a great start on BTRN and much success, their producers strongly suggested that they branch out on their own and develop their own network brand. ITRN was born with continued success and is still growing. Visit Intentional Talk Radio Network, Real Talk Radio Reimagined! at <https://www.itrnradio.com/>.
