The increasing demand for bag-in-box containers is expected to fuel the growth of the bag-in-box containers market in the coming years. A bag-in-box is a kind of container for the distribution and preservation of liquids and is a viable option for packaging of juice, liquid eggs, dairy, wine, and even non-food products such as motor oil and chemicals. According to findings by packaging pioneer Smurfit Kappa in conjunction with Wine Intelligence in 2020, Bag-in-Box wine has drawn 3.7 million new buyers in France and the United Kingdom over the last six months. In 2020 the Bag-in-Box wine consumer sector has risen to around 12 million buyers in France and 4 million buyers in the UK. Therefore, the increasing demand for bag-in-box containers is expected to drive the growth of the bag-in-box containers market during the forecast period.

The global bag-in-box containers market size is expected to grow from $3.37 billion in 2020 to $3.59 billion in 2021 at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 6.4%. The growth is mainly due to the companies resuming their operations and adapting to the new normal while recovering from the COVID-19 impact, which had earlier led to restrictive containment measures involving social distancing, remote working, and the closure of commercial activities that resulted in operational challenges. According to bag-in-box containers market research, the market is expected to reach $4.56 billion in 2025 at a CAGR of 6.2%.

The global bag-in-box containers market is segmented by material type into low density polyethylene, ethylene vinyl acetate, ethylene vinyl alcohol, others (nylon, poly-butylene terephthalate), by capacity into less than 5 liters, 5-10 liters, 10-15 liters, 15-20 liters, more than 20 liters, and by application into food and beverages, industrial liquids, household products, others.
