Pete and Wendy Mosior just could not sit idly by and watch these great restaurants be destroyed and driven out of business. Out of their own pocket they produced a video of support and a rallying call for small business local restaurants. They have tirelessly worked to build support across the Evergreen Mountain area just 30 miles west of Denver in the Colorado Rocky Mountains.

“We just had to do something. We could not just watch our local restaurants through no fault of their own be driven out of business. We hope this video promotion will inspire others to rally to save our local restaurants.”
