The website highlights the Calgary-based entrepreneur's career accomplishments. Further, there is a page dedicated to the interviews, news articles, and videos Bieleny has been featured in, through which he offers insights into the real estate industry and his passion for mentorship.

The About page begins by touching on Patrick Bieleny's career beginnings. He comes from a humble background, having been born in Eastern Europe. His family immigrated to Canada in 2010 in order to give Bieleny the opportunity to attend a prominent university. He ended up studying Business Management at the University of Toronto. After graduating from university, Bieleny purchased a condo outside of Calgary. This became the first property he ever fixed up and flipped for a profit. Over the years, Bieleny came to flip hundreds of properties and his earned expertise is what inspired him to found his own real estate flipping company, PB & Co. Houses.

He is also an active member of his community and gives back by acting as a mentor to aspiring real estate investors.
