

New Exciting Children's Book Teaches Kids About Teamwork, Diversity and Unity

Teachers, administrators and students crowd Harriet Tubman School's auditorium for the Talent Show. This is the biggest day of the year. What could go wrong?

CHATTANOOGA, TN, UNITED STATES, March 4, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Chistell Publishing announces the release of the culturally diverse, action-packed children's/early-young adult book, Rosetta The Talent Show Queen. Akin to the widely popular Pippi Longstocking books, the Rosetta book series showcases a courageous, spunky and daring girl. Ten-year-old Rosetta Blay is famous for her clever ideas, plotting skills and rich sense-of-humor. Despite her many preparations, Rosetta's creativity meets more than a few bumps in the road.

"This is the first book in the Rosetta series," Denise Turney, the book's author, shares. "Readers are introduced to show-stopping Rosetta and her brainy arc nemesis, Jennifer, in this book launch," Turney continues. "Young readers also see their peers interacting and learning in a diverse environment. More importantly, the book's readers learn about teamwork, unity and the importance of considering someone else's point of view," Turney adds.

It's no coincidence that this funny, life-like children's story comes to a head at the school talent show. Students from the fifth grade up to the eighth grade, the grade Rosetta's older sister is in, have rehearsed their lines, donned costumes and practiced skits. Teachers, administrators and students crowd Harriet Tubman School's auditorium. This is the biggest day of the school year. What could go wrong?
