The purpose of '$500 Press Challenge' is to gather work samples from creative brains and beings to find the right candidates who can join the Mokusei Tribe and create good art, content, media for the Company. The Applicant - or team of applicants - who ace this challenge will receive a compensation of $500 for the work or entry submitted - and Mokusei will be glad to sign a long-term contract with them or offer them a consultant role for some of Mokusei's upcoming projects.

Details of '$500 Press Challenge' can be found on The Press Challenge page of the website. This challenge was originally asked for submissions and entries from candidates in English language only. But on popular demand and on special requests, Mokusei Intelligence updated rules and guidelines for its FIRST ever '$500 Press Challenge' announced last week.

In the first iteration of rules, expected submissions and entries were to be designed and made in the English language only. Also, applicants were not allowed to seek clarity from the Mokusei team, or have their questions and doubts answered in case of ambiguous information or unclear information.

As per the NEW set of rules and guidelines, however, applicants can make and submit their art, work, or creation in any language of their choice -- targeted towards, & tailored for, whatever audience they think is fit for this challenge - and would get interested in what vallued.ai and Mokusei have to offer. They can also freely approach the Mokusei Founder in case they have any questions or queries that need clarity - or in case they want to conduct an interview and get to know the Mokusei team better.

The application process, steps to be taken by interested applicants, and criteria for evaluation have all been mentioned on the website. Candidates can choose to write their piece, or make their art & creation based on absolutely any part and aspect of the information & content that they understand and like. Entries can be as short as 30 seconds video clips or as long as properly researched articles, posts, or news stories which articulate and explain the idea/concept of vallued.ai and Mokusei Intelligence.

Some candidates will get priority consideration for evaluation from Mokusei - to check and find out who fits that bill or matches the criteria please visit <https://www.vallued.ai/the-press-challenge>.

Mokusei has a very flexible work culture. Interested individuals may apply to work in part-time, freelance, or contract capacity in case they like Mokusei but are not in a position to contribute in a full-time capacity.
