It doesn't happen all that often, but when it does, IT'S POWERFUL! It is almost as though it is nothing short of a magical force that can SET a mood, and transform 'our mundane everyday lives' into great times, filled with a massive amount of positive energy for all within 'ear shot'. It is a magical force that has the innate power to take a 'snap shot' in time, and years and even decades later, can instantaneously 'take you back' to those great times and invoke memories of those you shared those great times with; making our lives all the more richer with it's mere 'presence' in our lives.

That powerful, magical force is of course, great music. And though it doesn't happen all that often, every once in a while a truly exceptional album is released that harnesses all that power and more; and when it does, it is an absolute MUST HAVE of an album.

On February 15th, 2021, one such album was released. That exceptional 'must have' album is "Think I'm Going Crazy" by Pat Murphy & Alligator Cowboys Band; which is a 10 track absolute smoker of an album from the first note to the very last, with absolutely no 'filler tracks' on the entire album.

What differentiates this great album from the rest, is the fact that besides the outstanding performances by all members of the Alligator Cowboys Band, and the album is loaded with phenomenal mind blowing and fret board blistering performances by Pat Murphy on guitar and slide; "Think I'm Going Crazy" possesses the ability to bring that powerful magic to a vast range of fans of multiple genres of music, ranging from rock, progressive rock, cool jazz, to jazz/funk fusion, blues, 'bluesgrass'/'swamp grass' and beyond. Combining this caliber of master musicianship with the immense amount of 'broad audience appeal' this album offers by embracing multiple genres in one great album, and the positive vibe of the entire album itself, it is indeed the stuff that those rare, timeless, 'must have' albums are made of!
