

Technology Integrator CUSITech, LLC Acquires Storied Construction Company in Colorado Springs

Acquisition to provide many benefits to current customers by expanding services as well as benefits to the economy as company looks to expand workforce

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO, UNITED STATES, March 16, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- CUSITech, LLC is thrilled to announce the acquisition of Colorado Springs-based construction company Peak Professional Contractors.

Peak Professional Contractors has a 30-year history servicing customers with build-outs, retrofits and ground-up construction building SCIF's for government contractors, tenant improvements, and multi-location QSR and hotel construction rollouts.

The team at Peak will provide vertically integrated general contracting services for CUSI's current customers and expand their capabilities, while adding significant national coverage for CUSI's services with a heavy concentration in Colorado.

With the acquisition, CUSITech adds extensive expertise to help its national customers with additional general trade services such as menu board foundations, store retrofits and full ground-up construction. This complements CUSITech's existing low voltage, electrical installations and IT implementation services to give customers true single point accountability with a national reach.

CUSITech CEO Craig Kalie said being able to acquire a company with a reputation and history of success like Peak Professional Contractors is a no-brainer.

"It says a lot about a business with 30-year history, long-term key contributors built solely on repeat business and word of mouth. Acquiring Peak Professional contractors makes sense in furthering our mission to give our QSR, retail and medical customers single point accountability on multi-site rollouts and site improvements."

CUSITech's team grows by 25 employees with the addition of experienced project managers, superintendents, foremen and carpenters.
