partnership with Climate Wise as it focusses on ensuring its global business operates without any negative impact on the environment. By implementing a process of measuring, reducing, and offsetting its environmental impact, Krypton is demonstrating its connection with both the business community and its staff, as well as its wider corporate social responsibility. As ESG and CSR policies are increasingly coming to the fore, Krypton is exhibiting its commitment to operating with best practice in all areas.

Roderick White, CEO of Krypton, commented, ‘Krypton is committed to a long-term strategy of social responsibility; this includes protecting the environment and integrating these values into our overall business goals. It is very critical that all businesses do their part and come together to tackle this global issue. Working with Climate Wise will allow us to help educate our staff on climate change, to provide a platform to ensure they are carbon neutral and to work alongside a company focused on supporting, and monitoring, the best projects available.’

Justyn Branton, a founder and director of Climate Wise, stated, ‘We are delighted to welcome Krypton into the growing family of organisations working through the Climate Wise three stage plan - offsetting staff, the business and the products. By measuring each year and working to make reductions in the impact a business makes, this is a cycle of continued improvement to take a business to carbon neutral and, better yet, net negative.’
