

Get your Gangster on with a Rare Johnnie Bull Upright Slot Machine - Earliest Known Slot Machine. 1894 to Early 1900 Era

Al Capone, Carlo Gambino, Lucky Luciano, and Ronald McDonald all hang together in this one-of-a-kind collection going up for auction.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA, CANADA, March 18, 2021

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Jeff Schwarz, the star of the Canadian reality show "The Liquidator" currently running on Amazon Prime Video and Game TV, is taking people on a time machine with his auction to as early as the 1890s. "We have a crazy collection of slot machines like the Johnnie Bull and the rare Caille Musical upright slot machine from 1905", says Jeff. "If you ever wanted to experience how it feels like to be a gangster during the prohibition era in fur jackets, playing on slot machines while sipping on whiskey, then you're in luck because this is your chance to get your hands on all of it," says Jeff. This auction certainly has a theme, and it is vintage collectibles including items such as rare Lego sets from the '80s, '70s McDonald mementos such as a life-sized Ronald McDonald, antique carousel wooden horse replica from the '20s, and so much more.

In this highly collectible auction filled with rare items, the machines from circa 1905 steal the spotlight. "It's not every day that you discover one of the earliest known slot machines from the Caille Brothers, a complete set of Mills Page Console Companions, and a Rock-Ola jukebox, all in one place" quotes Rick Sky of the internationally renowned Concierge Collectors. Memorabilia from the infamous gangsters in American History are a runner-up for the spotlight. Collectables from 'The Five Points Gang' original members Al Capone, also known as the real "Scarface" and Charles "Lucky" Luciano father of modern organized crime, will be present. Additionally, Luciano's close syndicates, Frank Costello, and his infamous rival Carlo Gambino will be in attendance too.

Anyone can access these online auctions, which makes it possible for fans and collectors around the world to participate. "With the sad state of Covid, it gives folks something different to do on a Saturday with no obligation to bid." Continues Jeff, "I hope to help lift people's spirits and connect with my own fans and vintage memorabilia buffs as well." To join the fun, simply log in live and watch Jeff, "The Liquidator," call the auction live in real-time online.

Jeff and his team have been successfully running movie set auctions for some time now. In addition to the rare mementos, there are also McDonald's, Coca-Cola, early issue LIFE magazines, sought-after Americana collectors' items and not to mention the further offering of rare movie set props in the mix.
