automotive financing in the U.S. Norton describes his business as a major provider for various vehicle-related dealerships channeled through Canada, United States, Chile, and the EU.

According to him, innovation, favorable rates, and excellent services for both the clients and customers is the key to attracting more traffic. His commitment to the work and dedication while strategizing has helped him get where he is today. In this exclusive interview, he has shared some of the approaches he has tested and has brought exponential growth to his businesses. This helps in empowering potential entrepreneurs who want to start their businesses.

Elijah Norton believes that innovation is the way to go. The guru has pointed out that entrepreneurs need to start their ventures depending on the current trends. According to Elijah, entrepreneurs easily lose customers once they lose connection with the trending issues in business. He talks about being innovative where entrepreneurs must be creative and modify their services and products to cover the current needs of the consumers. He adds that being innovative helps businesses to learn about competition and come up with perfect approaches to surviving it.

Elijah insists that a business must embrace innovation, as well as, technology since these two cannot be separated. Technology has enabled him and many other businesses to run their activities to meet the needs of their consumers. It is the technology that brings about innovative ideas that boost operations and customer experience.

Norton says he started his call center company with only two employees. However, his startup has grown to a point where he has employed more than 300 staff members. His team has greatly impacted his success, and the way he has been achieving his goals. To him, the team's effort is what matters in achieving those milestones in business. This is where hiring the right employees comes in. The Veritas Global Protection President advises entrepreneurs to hire at the right time. From his statement, one does not necessarily need to hire an employee when they do not need one or keep one that is unproductive.

All businesses experience setbacks at some point. However, many do not come back from this since they cannot handle these drawbacks. He says that he embraced the setbacks, evaluated them, and found ways of overcoming them. He also points out that rejections and setbacks are part of entrepreneurship. The only way to overcome them is by accepting the challenge and finding innovative ways to come out from them. That means that one has to have solutions for the issues that may emerge.

Success Doesn't Come Overnight

Norton explains that it takes time to enjoy great benefits. His company took him around three years before he could enjoy the benefits. He, therefore, advises entrepreneurs to be patient and give their businesses ample time and space to grow and connect. Quitting is not the language. Business people must believe in their work and have solutions for the issues without giving up.

Elijah Norton says that without the customer, he would not be where he is now. He describes the customer as a significant asset and must be treated with transparency, respect, and honesty. The entrepreneurs' intentions must be geared towards meeting the needs of their consumers. They must, at all cost, avoid disappointing their customers.
