

Direct Technology's Amy Hess Promoted to Vice President of Operations

After more than a decade with the energy solutions company ESG, Amy Hess is their newest executive as VP of Operations.

ROSEVILLE, CA, USA, March 24, 2021

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Five years after graduating with honors from UC Santa Barbara, Amy joined Direct Technology as a Project Manager/Business Analyst. Almost 20 years later, her leadership is proud to name her Vice President of Operations, Energy Solutions. "Amy was instrumental in the design of our platforms, including many of our earliest projects," said Daniel S. Konieczny, Direct Technology CEO. "She brings extensive experience in the Energy Efficiency Program Management domain and is a natural at partnering with program managers for successful implementations and continued support."

In her new role, Hess will be responsible for overall delivery to clients, financial responsibility for all engagements, and overall personnel management. For her, this will merely be a continuation of the responsibilities and interpersonal rapport she has created during her time at Direct Technology.

"Amy is perfect for this role." Damion Walkup, Direct Technology Energy Solution's Vice President, and Sr. Partner praised Hess. "She sets the direction and energy for the team and creatively tackles customer challenges. Her experience with our delivery team, products, and customers gives her an edge to deliver exceptional quality to our valued customer base. Amy is inspirational and great at what she does."

During her time with Direct Technology, Amy has been instrumental in the design of the company's earliest platforms and projects. She has also been involved in all major customer implementations.
