"It is definitely a matter of great pride to have been certified as a great place to work for the second consecutive year. We have always been in the pursuit of building a healthy work culture, and to have our efforts recognized in this manner is very fulfilling. "It is an honor to be recognized for building a high-trust and high-performance culture in our organization, especially during a time when businesses were navigating through uncharted waters. The organization has always strived to provide an environment that makes life easier for our associates and their families. Even during times like these, when we were not able to see face to face, we ensured that we remained connected virtually," says Aravind Warriar, Director of Human Resources, RapidValue.

To enable associates to remain connected even while working remotely, the organization introduced quarterly virtual employee meets, online band performances, and multiple online employee engagement activities across the organization. RapidValue also organized virtual sessions for its associates, hosted by external subject matter experts. Understanding the importance of growing concerns regarding mental wellness, the organization introduced virtual counseling for its associates.
