

Visme Loves Teachers Campaign Launches

Now through July 2021, Visme empowers educators with access to free premium content to create engaging, visual communications for interactive distance learning

ROCKVILLE, MARYLAND, UNITED STATES, March 22, 2021

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Many educators face online fatigue due to moving traditional in-person learning to online while keeping students continuously engaged. Faculty members are unaccustomed to teaching online and those who are familiar with the practice know that online pedagogies and best practices to achieve active learning are different from lecturing face-to-face.

Teachers have been unsung heroes through this pandemic. They have continued to show up for our kids and we are thanking them for their hard work and ongoing dedication during these uncertain times”

Payman Taei, founder and CEO of Visme

“Teachers have been unsung heroes through this pandemic. They have continued to show up for our kids and we are thanking them for their hard work and ongoing dedication during these uncertain times,” said Payman Taei, founder and CEO of Visme. “We were inspired to launch this campaign after it became clear that many teachers were going to be facing another semester of online teaching. It really is a whole different ball game from being in the physical classroom. Keeping kids engaged in an online class takes a lot more work and we knew giving them access to our app would help. Our primary goal is for teachers to feel appreciated. We want to acknowledge how difficult it's been for them and make the rest of the semester a little easier.”

Visme’s weekly 101 webinars are regularly filled with teachers who express their love for the easy-to-use platform and share how Visme has helped make teaching easier both on and offline.

Students are faced with distractions, lack of motivation, technical issues, along with a diminished social environment. As we find ourselves in another semester of distance learning, Visme is presenting teachers everywhere with the opportunity to access its premium content creation platform at no cost.
