New Media Film Festival® honors stories worth telling. Music tells great stories and this year includes a global collection of sound. Announcing early lineup nominees in the Music categories for the 2021 New Media Film Festival® Awards.

The original music nominees are Roots-Sequoia, Movin' On, Endless Guitars, Ode to Joy, An Interesting Story About an Uninteresting Guy and After the Lockdown.

The City of Los Angeles salutes and celebrates New Media Film Festival, a celebration of the intersection of new technology, storytelling and world renown talent to the City of Los Angeles.”
Councilmember Paul Koretz

-From United Kingdom, Artist emaé would see her family move from Scotland to England, Zambia, Zimbabwe and Botswana before settling in London. She created Roots-Sequoia, a feel-good blend of soul-pop, as a fusion of all the cultures that embraced her and the places she’s called home.

-When Samarah Conley (USA) was eleven years old she was feeling sad and wrote Movin’ On. The chorus was created in the studio with producer Len Monachello.

- Endless Guitars is from the internationally award-winning anniversary album “The World Anthem” by Artist Conny Conrad of Germany.

- From Conductor Taras Kutsenko, Ode to Joy was born out of a great desire to unite during the pandemic. Musicians from (China, Monaco, Spain, Ukraine) recorded their videos on mobile & sound engineers worked with this material to create a full-fledged studio sound.

- From composer Donny Walker (USA) An Interesting Story About an Uninteresting Guy features over 70 Chicago based musicians.

- Music Video After the Lockdown by Director Joy Shannon – USA is based on the film, After the Lockdown: Black In LA

- The Music Series recently released on The Media Futurists Podcast include Musicians Series, Episode 3: - Samarah Conley, 13-year-old singer, songwriter and actor, released her newest single “Movin’ On” in 2020. Samarah wrote her first song when she was just five years old and has a bright future in the music and entertainment industry. Here we discuss the future of Samarah’s career, her inspiration for “Movin’ On” and her favorite types of music to listen to.
