In April 2019, Bristol-Myers Squibb Company, an American pharmaceutical company, got the approval to acquire Celgene Corporation for $74 billion. Celgene Corporation is a company that develops medicines for cancer and inflammatory disorders. The transaction is expected to create a leading specialty company which would address the needs of patients with cancer, inflammatory and immunologic disease and cardiovascular disease through high-value innovative medicines and leading scientific capabilities. Such mergers and acquisitions are important trends in the colorectal cancer drugs market.

The colorectal cancer drugs market consists of sale of colorectal cancer drugs. Colorectal cancer (CRC) or bowel cancer, is the cancer affecting the large intestine and the rectum. It is also named colon tumor or rectal cancer depending upon where it begins.
