Attorney Eduard Braun Provides You with Workable Solutions to Get Your Money Back

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, USA, March 26, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Attorney Eduard Braun Provides You with Workable Solutions to Get Your Money Back

The year 2020 and the COVID-19 pandemic saw rising numbers of people and businesses going into debt as America's workforce, in most cases, closed down. For some, there was not enough money coming in to pay bills beyond rent, utilities, and food. While there was a relief when rent and mortgage payments were put on hold, such relief meant landlords and banks had trouble collecting the money owed that kept properties and assets solvent.

Workable Solutions Available

For now, Governor Gavin Newsom and California's legislature have extended rent and mortgage payment prohibitions until June 30, 2021, according to the Los Angeles Times. Senate Bill (SB) 91 passed on January 29, 2021, to protect renters and mortgage payers, at least for now, from collection tactics and judgments. Renters and mortgage payers must declare under perjury, however, their inability to pay all or even part of their rental or mortgage bills, even though the fees are still due, according to Governor Newsom's public relations website.

While certain types of payments are in abeyance right now, which includes student loans and property taxes, other bills like car and credit card are still due, except in certain situations. Yet, creditors must follow certain rules about collections, harassment, and other related issues. Work with creditors to make small payments if you can do so. Contact Attorney Braun who can advise you on the latest California debt collection regulations, as these are changing all the time, because of the pandemic.
