The artists:

Norwegian N.jay started his chapter into electronic music after he got to try playing on vinyl back in 2011, this caused a spark in his interest in electronic music. Growing up he would play random music from the collection at home, play video games like Zelda: Ocarina of Time and Guitar Hero, and simply sing like a madman when he was home alone. N.jay makes a variety of music, but mainly it has something funky and housey to it.

SubPhex is an electronic music producer specializing in Dubstep and Drum & Bass. Not limiting himself to genres & styles; his main goal is to evolve each track to be different. To explore mixing different genres, styles, and vibes from different periods of time, in order to create new modern bass-heavy genre hybrids. Walking on the brink of melodic & fierce; the contrast of having different vibes and emotions is a strong pursuit of SubPhex. There is never quite knowing how a song may evolve and change into something different, and what types of style influences the track is going to be hit with.

Zpox brings that fresh electronic music that makes granny dance while cooking! The exciting sounds from Zpox take you on a journey with good vibes to heavy deep bass. His musical journey started as a teenager where he invested most of his time studying music production!

About us

Epileptic Factory, based in Bergen, Norway, is a music collective started by N.jay and Zpox back in 2019. It all started with a good drink and a dream to create a place where they could work together and release their own and others' music. Fast forward to January 2021 the third member of the team, SubPhex joined them. Together they are working towards making Epileptic Factory greater.
