well as the lack in consistently following protocol after prescribing these medications. The documentary will also unveil the reluctance of the law enforcement officials to arrest local dealers and peddlers of these deadly drugs.

“Addiction Has No Favorites” isn’t just about Robin and Stefanie alone. We know their stories are sadly just a few more pages in a very large book of injustices and lives lost to this monster opioid addiction. We know there are so many more untold stories out there; here in Florida and all over the world. We want to bring those stories into the light and share them with the world. So, we are reaching out to everyone. “Addiction Has No Favorites” is also a call to those who have lost a loved one to opioid addiction and are willing to be interviewed. We are still collecting stories and data in order for this project to really have an impact. This is more than a predictive story of the death...this is a story of life. The lives of someone’s mother, someone’s daughter, and so many others. It’s about the lives of families who are forced to stand by and watch. Some are completely uninformed and their reach for help is often met with judgment and dismissal. This is also about the lives not yet affected. If we can educate, we can prepare. If we can prepare, we can save.

“Addiction Has No Favorites” is an opportunity to dive into a world of misconceptions & misjudgments and learn. This is a call for all to join this father and daughter in their fight for justice, law reform and real change. Join us as we share stories while also honoring and celebrating the lives of your loved ones. This documentary is currently still in production. “Addiction Has No Favorites” is also in need of filmmakers/documentarians that believe in this cause and want to be part of the project. “Addiction Has No Favorites” documentary is more than telling a story, it is seeking change.
