changes going on in the world of work.”

Most recently, Amaral served as head of global head of Talent Acquisition for Marsh & McLennan Companies, a global leader in risk, strategy and people with more than 75,000 employees. Previously, she held talent leadership roles at Fidelity Investments, New York Life, ADP and AON/Hewitt. Prior to her talent acquisition career, Tara held banking and financial services leadership positions at JPMorgan Chase.

“While there are major economic and demographic changes happening in the world of work, organizations that recognize their strategic need to build a quality talent pipeline will flourish,” said Amaral. “I’m pleased to build upon Riviera Advisors’ tremendous reputation for helping organizations implement recruiting successes and get higher value from their talent acquisition function.”

Amaral is based in Charleston, South Carolina and will serve a global client base. She frequently speaks to audiences regarding the value of an optimized talent acquisition function, diversity/equity and inclusion, and talent technology. Tara has been a frequent industry speaker, well-travelled industry advocate and has participated in leadership roles with the Association of Talent Acquisition Professional (ATAP), the Conference Board Global Labor Advisory Council, and the Society for Human Resources Management (SHRM). Tara is a proud alumna of Brown University, holding a Bachelor’s Degree in Organizational Behavior.
