Some camp planning points to keep in mind

We all know that 2020 and a lot of 2021 so far have been far from normal. If you're feeling nervous about just what you can expect from the summer camp season, you'll want to think about some of the main factors that have changed drastically over the past year. For example:

☐In-person vs online camps: There are quite a few listings for online kids activities that you can choose from, giving you a safe and virtual camp that is still going to be jam packed with fun and games.

☐Budget: If you're working on a tighter budget than normal, you can use that to search quickly through the Kidzmania camp page and limit your list to just those that you can afford.

☐Day camp vs sleepover camp: While this isn't necessarily related to this year, there's the classic battle between fun, immersive day camp, or morale-boosting sleepover camp. A packed full of fun and then coming home to Mom and Dad, or bonding over s'mores with bunkmates? You'll want to include your child in this decision!

This year's summer camp planning guide for parents may look a little different than you're used to, but it's also got just as much potential!
