“Graham has the proven ability to see around corners and build for the future,” added Ed Sullivan, Founder and CEO of Trust Exchange. “Like me, Graham is a fan of technology and the impact it can have on people where they live: homes, cities and towns. The emergence and adoption of social technologies via the Internet has led to the establishment of the collaborative economy. Local organizations, businesses and cities have been slow to adopt these technologies. We think that is about to change.”
