

Motivosity Wins “Best Places to Work - Salt Lake City” Award from Comparably

Being a "Best Place to Work" isn't surprising for Motivosity. That's what their software is all about."

LEHI, UT, UNITED STATES, April 8, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Motivosity, the company changing employee recognition, has been awarded “Best Places to Work in Salt Lake City” for 2021 by Comparably. Each quarter Comparably honors companies with Best Places to Work Awards, as rated by employees. Motivosity ranked number 7 across the region. Other winners include Qualtrics, Adobe, and BambooHR.

Of course the company is thrilled with the recognition, but they aren't particularly surprised. After all, Motivosity is literally a software that was built to help people be happier about being at work. The peer to peer recognition software has a 95% usage rate, so they know what it takes to create a great work environment.

Our whole mission is to help people be happier about being at work and of course that includes our own team.”

Motivosity*

Scott Johnson, Founder and CEO commented, “Our whole mission is to help people be happier about being at work and of course that includes our own team. We use Motivosity internally just like our customers do, which creates a powerful sense of connection.” Johnson continued, “Just as importantly, Motivosity makes sure people are recognized for their day to day efforts. As easy as that sounds, it's something many organizations miss.”

Speaking to the positive environment at Motivosity, one employee respondent said, “Everyone loves what they do, they love helping others...We are all pushing in the same direction and supporting each other on the way.” Another survey answer stated, “Everything is seen as an opportunity to grow. I don't think we have a single negative person on our team. The energy in the office is infectious and every day feels like a Friday."

Besides great team members, the Motivosity corporate values are a key contributing factor to such a powerful work environment. "Our values are Stay Young, Love What You Do, and Serve Always," says Logan Mallory, Vice President of Marketing. "But we don't just have that written on our walls," he continues. "People here really enjoy their roles, and we take care of each other and our customers. The "Stay Young" part is just a natural result of hiring such fun people."

Comparably Awards are determined by survey responses given by the company's own employees. Survey questions range from sentiment ratings provided by current employees in the greater Salt Lake City area who anonymously rated their employers on Comparably.com over the past 12 months. Nearly 20 different workplace culture categories are measured, from compensation, leadership, and work-life balance to professional development opportunities, and perks and benefits. It's important to note that all of this feedback was provided during the COVID19 pandemic, making these evaluations and ranking even more timely and relevant for job seekers. The circumstance in which the results were provided illustrates the resilience of the companies that placed.

Motivosity continues to build their presence as a great employer in the state of Utah, and as a leader in the "Employee Recognition" industry. They know having a great team and being a great place to work is an essential part of that effort.
