

Family Office Real Estate Institute Launched to Provide Executive Education for the Family Office Industry

Courses to be Taught by Nationally Recognized Faculty from Wharton, Harvard, the University of Denver, and Industry leaders

DENVER, COLORADO (CO), UNITED STATES, April 8, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Family Office Real Estate is pleased to announce the Van Keuren Family Office Real Estate

Institute (FOREI). The Institute will be offering Executive Education Programs to help grow family office real estate expertise and handle critical challenges using nationally recognized faculty from Wharton, Harvard, the university of Denver, and industry experts around the country. The Institute is named after DJ Van Keuren, a longtime family office real estate industry expert. (www.fore.institute)

In simple terms, a family office is a private company that helps wealthy families (think a net worth in the $250 million-plus range) manage their investments. These offices often employ executives to supervise family investment portfolios and financial interests, plus manage wealth preservation/transfer, tax, and legal and estate planning issues.

Glenn R. Mueller, PhD a 45-year real estate veteran, will lead the first class. He is a professor at University of Denver's Burns School of Real Estate, and the Real Estate Investment Strategist ad Black Creek Group. He is a former builder/developer and has worked with institutional investors and public REITs for the past 31 years.

"With real estate being such an important asset class for families, there are unmet needs in education for family offices, family members, and family office executives," Mueller said. "Bringing institutional-level sophistication to family office investors in real estate should be a great leap forward."

FOREI (www.fore.institute) will offer multiday courses throughout the year both online and at a university campus. The executive education programs, certificate programs, and courses will be open to family offices, family members, family office executives, and family office professionals. Mueller says that course offerings will help families that have an established real estate company or whose wealth was created elsewhere and need to start learning about the process of real estate investing.

According to the Family Office Real Estate Magazine surveys, real estate makes up an average 22% of family offices' investment portfolio. Collectively, US family offices have about $2.1 trillion invested in real estate. In general, Van Keuren says, "real estate represents the largest generator of income and wealth for families, outside of the businesses that originally earned them their fortunes."

The inaugural course, Family Office Real Estate Investing, will be offered June 2nd, 3rd, 8th & 9th in Online format - due to Covid. The Program covers real estate market cycles & market analysis, finance & investment, real estate tax & law, portfolio construction, portfolio management (including a case study on real estate portfolio management), and sponsor underwriting, all specifically designed for the family office. As part of the inaugural class, the first five family offices that enroll can receive a real estate portfolio analysis of their investments.

The Van Keuren Family Office Real Estate Institute is a resource hub for family real estate businesses and family offices, providing executive education, certificates, workshops, and networking opportunities. www.fore.institute
