

CATCH Global Foundation Adds Three New Board Members as it Expands Whole Child Program Line-Up

CATCH now reaches over 3M kids in the US, and this year will add CATCH Healthy Smiles that addresses oral health. Tooth decay is most common childhood disease.

AUSTIN, TX, USA, April 12, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- One of the world leaders in providing evidence-based Whole Child health programming,

CATCH Global Foundation, today announced the addition of three new members to their esteemed Board of Directors: Nicholas Saccaro with Quest Food Management Services in Chicago, Kevin Ryan with Delta Dental Community Cares Foundation in San Francisco, and Stefani Dawkins with Wells Fargo & Company, also in San Francisco.

"We are delighted to have Stefani, Kevin, and Nick bring their expertise and experience to CATCH, as 2021 looks to be another exciting year of growth for our organization," said CATCH Global Foundation CEO, Duncan Van Dusen. "Our board is helping us build capacity to manage an ever-expanding portfolio of Whole Child health programs and grant-funded projects."

CATCH's Whole Child programs reach over 3 millions kids in the U.S. annually, and later this year the organization will add a program, CATCH Healthy Smiles, that addresses oral health. Tooth decay is the most common childhood disease and causes tens of millions of missed school hours due to dental problems each year. In addition to teaching better oral health practices, promoting ""tooth friendly"" foods in the school cafeteria is an important component of CATCH's approach to oral health education.

"Stefani's years of experience working in ethics and compliance, and with nonprofits in the K-12 education space, Nick's experience in school food services, and Kevin's expertise in oral health through Delta Dental – the largest dental plan system in the nation – make them particularly well suited additions to the board as we navigate these new program areas," added Van Dusen.
