About RxE2

RxE2 is the first company to make decentralized clinical trials a cost-effective reality. By integrating the practice of pharmacy into every aspect of clinical trials, RxE2 empowers local pharmacists, as trusted medication experts, to use their extensive patient insights and make clinical trials more accessible to patients, everywhere. This, in turn, vastly reduces clinical trial timelines and costs, helps patients achieve better health outcomes, and provides study sponsors with more accurate data. <https://www.rxe2.com/>.

About Habitu

Habitu is an AI-based solution applying Distributed Trial Management across life-routines and points-of-care for better trial performance. Habitu uses behavior-based intervention to adapt to the habits and life routines of patients, optimizing every step of the trial process.
