PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA, UNITED STATES, April 28, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- C-leveled, a Pittsburgh-based marketing agency, is celebrating twelve years in business with the launch of a new company website. An agency that is recognized as a leader in rebranding and launching exceptional websites is marking their 12th anniversary with a rebrand of its own.

“

As we have all learned over the past 12 months, digital marketing is vital to every business or organization, and it begins with the website.”

Denise DeSimone

The reasoning behind refreshing the website was to showcase their abilities by utilizing the latest technology and design trends. The new website gives the agency a new, vibrant look and outlines the updated service offerings as they stand today. Bringing a new website to life is truly a team effort and takes the work of many hands, from web developers to graphic designers, content writers, and project managers.

In response to C-leveled’s new look, CEO Denise DeSimone stated, “Our job as marketers is to continually explore and become proficient in new design and technology trends in the digital marketing space. As we have all learned over the past 12 months, digital marketing is vital to every business or organization, and it begins with the website.”
