“At GMUSIC+, our artists are at the center of everything we do. Our 360 strategy is based on a desire to be more fully aligned with our artists in every facet of their careers,” said Guion during the rollout of new GMUSIC+ services. Clients seem to be satisfied with their representation as Guion Partners continues to grow thanks to glowing reviews and an unrivaled number of artist services. “At the moment, the majority of artists are undiscovered. With the music industry being so difficult to break into, individuals need the right representation and contacts to build their brand and achieve their short and long-term goals,” explains Guion.

Lindsay Guion has worked with several high-profile clients, including Grammy award-winning artists, songwriters and producers, and prominent names in the technology and media sectors. In the past twelve months, GMUSIC+ has had countless inquiries regarding its services and signed many new clients because of its improved 360-degree talent representation strategy. “We are overwhelmed by the great response we are getting from artists in the music industry. We are fortunate that they trust us to look after their best interest, and we look forward to working with new and exciting vocalists and musicians in various musical genres," says Guion.
