Ayanda Sibanda (Instagram: @yandiemusic) was inspired to write this song when she was sixteen after an encounter she had on the bus. Here is her story:

"I was on the bus going to College one day and I was playing songs on my MP3. Out of nowhere, I heard this beautiful instrumental piece and it moved me so much I started singing what is now the hook and verse of the song instantly. When I looked down to check what the name of the instrumental was (because I did not remember downloading it or hearing anything like it before), I could not find it. It disappeared! I tried looking on my laptop, my phone, MP3 everywhere but I have never found it again. That is until we started recording it.

Fast forward to 2020 I was walking home one day, and I heard a symphony in my mind (separate parts of the song being sang at the same time) and I immediately pulled out my phone to record it. I struggled because I only have one voice so I could not do what I was hearing justice. I also realized that it was a continuation of the mystery song I had started when I was sixteen.

When the leader of GHIC Music team Temitope Ezobi

(Instagram: @temitopeezobi) said I should put forward any songs I would like to record, I thought about the song I had started back in 2014. This song is special to me because it is the first song I ever wrote and it's the only song I heard audibly before bringing it to life in the studio”.

When Ayanda first brought the song to Goziam (Instagram: @goz_i_am) the song producer, she tried to explain mixing three sections together to create a symphony but after careful consideration, it was split into sections which add more body to the piece and compel the listener to move through the motions of the song.
