Speaking to her clients and team Kowalik said "A long time ago, I started a tradition, and more recently I started talking about this tradition and that is, of giving back to the community. Acenda, which was Robin's Nest, until 2019, is a group that works with teenagers that were in tough positions, single moms or Veterans that were in tough positions. They help the people who fall through the cracks elsewhere that need help and they look to the community to make a difference. Now what I love about this group is that they are not looking for a handout, they are looking for a hand UP, that means if you're working hard, like all of us here do. If you're working hard at school or your job whatever it is, you are, in fact, doing the best you can for you. And some of us need help with that foundation, because not everybody has that foundation. Acenda, makes that difference. I vowed a long time ago to take a portion of every piece of business that we do and give it back to the local community. Every single one of you has had a hand in this check, so thank you for your trust, your business.”
