LINEN SERVICE FOR RESTAURANTS

Here is the background on this release. The current Pandemic has made being a restaurant manager or owner more challenging than ever. The “on again” “off again” nature of restaurant restrictions has running a NYC restaurant even more chaotic. Over time, to be sure, the Pandemic will abate and New York City restaurants will reopen. Hopefully by summer, a full reopening of indoor dining will occur. Savvy restaurant owners and managers are reaching out to the company for a zero cost, no obligation quote on potential linen services. The newest “no contract” option is an attractive way to bolster one’s capacity during these turbulent times.
