UT Permian Basin's MBA program offers three emphasis options in accounting, finance, and, marketing. In addition, students can earn a certificate in the energy business. The MBA energy concentration has reshaped the program to meet the needs of the local industry. The energy concentration has generated interest from those who are currently employed in the energy industry, and from students who are interested in choosing this career path. The courses cover current topics like investments, finance, energy accounting, and oil and gas law.

The University also has a partnership with UT Health Science Center Houston in which students can earn a certificate in Public Health and with Texas Tech University Health Science Center for a certificate in Health Systems Policy and Management. UT Permian Basin's MBA program is flexible, offering classes either 100% online, on campus, or a hybrid model.

“A lot of our students are already in the workforce serving our region and beyond. Because of that, we know how important it is to make our courses flexible. Students can choose their own pace and decide if they want to take their courses face-to-face or online. The program also offers evening classes and there is an accelerated plan for students who wish to complete the program in just one year,” explained Dr. Anshu Saran, College of Business Director of Graduate Programs.
