BlueStar to provide aging-in-place tech services to American Legion Auxiliary members

WASHINGTON, DC, USA, April 27, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The American Legion Auxiliary (ALA) has partnered with BlueStar SeniorTech to provide aging-in-place services to ALA members.

BlueStar provides aging-in-place tech services to over 5,000 families across America, keeping them safe, healthy, and connected in their homes as they age. The ALA has more than 700,000 members located in 8,000 local communities.

BlueStar's CEO, retired Admiral Robert Wray, said, "As a service-disabled veteran-owned business, and as a lifetime member of the American Legion, we are proud to provide services to such a worthy population."

ALA's Development Director, Madison Maves, said, "We're delighted to provide BlueStar's service as a benefit to our members, they're a perfect fit for our membership base."

Among others, BlueStar's products include medical alerts, prescription management, fall detection, wearables, watches, remote
