Educating others and lifelong learning are Sue's mission and calling. "Effective leadership is critical for organizations to meet the disruptive, volatile changes taking place in the world" says Sue. "There are many well-intentioned, capable leaders who are struggling in their role, and the strain of the past year has made this more complicated."

"Some elements of leadership are timeless such as providing clear direction and communicating respectfully. Great leaders get inspiration and innovation by being curious about different ideas, perspectives, and experiences.
