“We encourage our Native American Veterans to enroll in a pilot program with DrKumo. The company helps solve the most painful problems in healthcare today brought about by the pandemic and the widespread chronic diseases in our nation through its innovative RPM technology,” said Ted Tenorio, president of NAVA.

DrKumo provides multi-award-winning RPM solutions that feature live health data analytics and rich visualization on its integrated cloud-based platform. This advanced technology enables collaborative and timely intervention as healthcare providers can easily monitor the presence and progression of a patient’s disease continuously in real-time.

"Our partnership with NAVA will enable veterans to send their health vitals from home to healthcare providers on a regular basis and thus maintain a healthy lifestyle," explained Kelly Nguyen, CEO of DrKumo. "One of our goals is to bridge the digital divide in healthcare as well as to provide an advanced level of care, especially for the elderly, rural, and underserved populations."

NAVA Talking Circle with DrKumo will start on May 8, 2021. Please contact NAVA at 888-412-5997 or DrKumo@NAVAvets.org.
