EXECUTIVE EDUCATION

With Real Estate being such an important asset class for families, there are unmet needs in education for Family Offices, Family Members, and Family Office Executives. The FOREI

Having an Executive Education Program focused strictly on real estate for family offices, is a huge step forward for the family office community”

educational program is designed to help grow Family Office real estate expertise and handle critical challenges, with courses taught by Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania, the Harvard Graduate School of Design & The Burns School Real Estate & Construction Management, University of Denver.

FOREI will offer its inaugural course “Family Office Real Estate Investing” on June 2nd, 3rd & 8th, 9th, consisting of four hours each day. The course will cover real estate topics including market cycles, market analysis, tax & Legal, Finance Fundamentals, Sponsor Underwriting along with two case studies, discussing understanding the family office real estate portfolio and market seconds. The second case study discussing private equity real estate funds. Due to COVID this course will be on-line. Go to www.fore.institute for more information.

Dr Glenn Mueller – Newly appointed Academic Director of the FORE Institute said: “I am excited to be apart of The Van Keuren Institute that is doing Family Office Real Estate Executive Education, research and offering both on-campus and online education programs. We will commence cutting-edge research on critical challenges facing family offices, including transitions of real estate businesses, tax planning, estate planning, wealth preservation, and wealth creation for future generations regarding their real estate portfolios and real estate businesses. We will also offer a place for the FORE community to engage and interact with each other, and share best practices. This is a huge step forward for family offices.”
