/EINPresswire.com/ -- Romet \(www.rometlimited.com\) provides end-to-end measurement solutions to natural gas utilities across the globe. Supporting the evolution of the Natural Gas industry for a more sustainable environment is at the core of Romet's business.

Brent Collver is a results-driven professional with over 20 years of engineering, operations, business development and executive experience. He has previously led the global expansion of a number of manufacturers through expertise in solution innovation and strategic development. He focuses on a collaborative team environment, promoting strong customer engagement to provide tailored solutions.

Brent Collver, CEO of Romet Limited

Brent Collver has led Romet's complete production launch of a disruptive technology to the Natural Gas industry through the use of solutions in IoT. He has also completed the business strategy and execution plan to grow the company significantly through the introduction of new products and services based on technological offering, advanced customer support (through technology) and best-in-class project management and delivery processes. He re-configured the business during the pandemic to minimize cost leakage while continuing to invest in new product/service technologies, therefore positioning the company to accelerate through the global pandemic recovery and support its customers in achieving aggressive goals to build resilient, safe and connected grids. Through innovative use of technology and a strong, supportive work force, Romet has been able to keep its customers supported without impact, all the while ensuring its teams remain safe and healthy.

Commenting on innovation at Romet, Brent Collver said: "Innovation is core to our business and defined in our purpose as always challenging the status quo on behalf of our customers. This means we must continually strive to understand the customer, their challenges (in all forms) and present innovative solutions to solve problems. For Romet this means more than product innovation, but also how the company interacts with the customer.

Further, the rapidly changing landscape of technology, particularly with the Internet of Things (IoT), has afforded Romet to take a lead position in helping our customers create a connected environment for significantly less cost and complexity of existing solutions. Romet relies on the ability to understand the relationship between available technology or emerging technology and the current and future needs of our customers. This drives embedded innovation processes to continually improve the state-of-the-art and value to our customers."
