WPG Receives FAA Drone Waiver for 14 CFR § 107.51(c)—Visibility and 14 CFR § 107.51(d) —Cloud Clearance and added six new FAA Remote Pilots

BEVERLY HILLS, CA, USA, May 12, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The World Protection Group (WPG), a full-service security firm specializing in international executive protection and executive protection drone operations, has just recruited six more FAA certified remote pilots to the team. This marks another milestone for the executive security leader which has also received its fourth FAA waiver.

The World Protection Group is the only Executive Protection firm in the United States to acquire four of the most difficult-to-obtain FAA drone waivers. Only experienced WPG FAA drone pilots with the expert level of knowledge and training can implement its use.

1. Waiver- 107.29 (a)(2)-Night Operations
2. Waiver- 107.39-Fly Operations over people
3. Waiver- 107.31-Beyond Visual line of sight
4. Waiver 107.51 (c&d)-Visibility operating limitations

WPG also has airspace authorizations covering all the major airports in the Los Angeles County and Las Vegas areas.

In addition, WPG CEO Kent Moyer has recently traveled to Austin, Texas, to complete the training required to earn the Top Level 2 Remote Pilot Certification from the Associate for Unmanned Vehicle Systems International. It is an honor that very few individuals have achieved in the United States and demands a high level of skills and proficiency.

How and Why does The World Protection Group use Drones?

Drones can be deployed much more quickly than ground-based security personnel and cover a larger area. They can also be deployed to areas that might be inaccessible or unsafe for security personnel. They are less expensive than a helicopter, while also having the advantage of being more discreet as well as more nimble and able to penetrate confined spaces.

Drone cameras can provide superior coverage to stationary or CCTV security cameras. They have a 360 degree view, they are generally out of reach of disabling attacks, and they can follow suspects or persons of interest as they move without being detected.

Drone Executive Protection & Investigation Services

The World Protection Group uses drones in daily security and investigation operations, including the following:

1. Estate air patrols
2. Surveillance and counter-surveillance
3. Investigations
4. Crime scene photos and video footage
5. Protective intelligence
6. SWAT Support
7. Active shooter
8. Search and rescue
9. Executive protection advance work and route planning
10. Accident investigations
11. School security assessments
12. Special event security
13. Risk and vulnerability assessments

The World Protection Group, Inc. Drone Executive Protection and Investigation Services

WPG employs only the best FAA remote drone pilots operating its extensive fleet of drones. This grant of waivers by the FAA will allow its pilots to conduct wide-ranging aerial sweeps, investigations, mapping, and patrols of properties and cities. In addition, air patrols working under the waivers will have greater surveillance and counter-surveillance abilities and far-reaching search and rescue capabilities, disaster response, and risk/vulnerability assessments. As a result, WPG's executive protection drone services are more sophisticated, thorough, and concentrated than ever before, ensuring its clients' safety at all times and under any circumstance.

About The World Protection Group

Founded in 2001 by Kent Moyer and headquartered in Beverly Hills, with offices in New York City, Mexico, and Shanghai, The World Protection Group offers full-service international security. WPG is the only US-based security company with four FAA waivers: one to fly over the top of people and the other to fly operations at night, beyond visual line of sight, and visibility operating limitations with airspace authorizations for the entire Los Angeles County and Las Vegas. WPG has armed security trained pilots and an extensive fleet of Drones. Pilots must have FEMA 100, 200, 300, and disaster response training, so they know what to do when emergencies and natural disasters occur and fit into the FEMA system and support law enforcement.
