Bob Lee

“West Sacramento is not only close to Sacramento but to communities such as Folsom that are centers of the technology industry,” explained Bob Lee, President of Key Housing. He continued, “We find hard-to-find short-term housing in West Sacramento for busy corporate travelers who have been assigned to Northern California. Our May designee is a 'must see' property! ”

Interested persons can view the West Sacramento listing at <https://www.keyhousing.com/corporate-rental-properties/capitol-yards/>. That listing is ideal for short term housing in Sacramento and West Sacramento and explains that when business travelers live at Capitol Yards, they are just steps away from Downtown Sacramento, Sutter Health Park, and riverside parks and paths. This modern, unique riverside community features exceptionally designed studio, 1-, 2-, and 3-bedroom apartment homes loaded with tech features for connection and comfort. With amenities like a demonstration kitchen, sparkling saltwater relaxation pool and lush outdoor living spaces, downtown living is really starting to take shape. Beyond that, interested persons can visit the Sacramento short term housing page at <https://www.keyhousing.com/corporate-housing-city/sacramento/> or, even better, reach out to a housing consult who can take stock about a business traveler's needs and then scour the hard-to-find listings to locate the best short term housing options.

Sacramento may not have the visibility of San Francisco or Napa, but it is a delightful community for the business traveler. Sacramento and its surrounding region have so much to offer. Choose from restaurants that pride themselves on farm-to-fork cuisine, to a variety of outdoor recreation spots. Known as the City of Trees, Sacramento has more trees per capita than any city in the United States. Just a couple hours outside Sacramento, the business traveler can find a variety of activities and places to visit. Located in the heart of Northern California, Sacramento is situated almost exactly between the Pacific Ocean and its beautiful beaches to the west. It is no surprise, therefore, that the coveted NorCal award for May has gone to this region.
