"We understand the impact that the Covid-19 pandemic has had on you and your business, and we are committed to keeping your health and well-being our top priority," said Rick Feld, CEO, and spokesperson for Bevmax Office Centers. "We take this very seriously and are determined to have the best and most effective response to the COVID-19 virus within our industry."

Feld explained that Bevmax Office Centers has implemented a variety of COVID-19 best practices, including temperature taking, PPE masks, disinfecting, hand sanitizer, thoroughly cleaned restrooms, retraining all cleaning employees on the proper cleaning procedures, frequent cleaning solution changes to prevent the spreading of contamination throughout the facility, and more.

Also, the wearing of masks or other face coverings approved by the CDC, according to Feld, is mandatory before entering the center and is required in all public areas of the center.

"Building cleaners will also be issued an EPA registered disinfectant to wipe all hard surfaces, and a spray and wipe disinfectant will be used with special attention to hand touched areas, such as doorknobs, elevator buttons, thermostat controls, and light switches,” Feld said, before adding, “Bevmax Office Centers will continue to evaluate and implement all best practices recommended by the leading health institutions and federal, state, and city authorities.”
