upskilling and assessment platform, and Juice Analytics, a leading data visualization platform, announce a strategic partnership to expand QuantHub’s data literacy upskilling offering to include exclusive data storytelling and visualization learning materials leveraging Juice Analytics’ expertise and powerful platform.

By leveraging Juice Analytics’s data visualization and data storytelling expertise and platform with QuantHub’s unique microlearning approach to data upskilling, companies will have a one-stop shop to build the critical data communication skills of their workforce.

“One of the primary reasons companies struggle to leverage data in operations and strategy is the lack of data skill across the enterprise, particularly around data storytelling and data visualization,” said Matt Cowell, QuantHub CEO. “We’re thrilled to partner with Juice Analytics to bring their extensive data visualization and storytelling expertise to learners within the QuantHub platform. No longer do learners have to sit through generic, several-hour training courses to learn critical data skills. With QuantHub and Juice Analytics, they can learn critical data skills in just 10 minutes a day!”

“At Juice, we want to enable a new generation of data citizens with the skills to understand, visualize, and communicate data,” said Zach Gemignani, Juice Analytics CEO. “Through our partnership with QuantHub, our data visualization and data storytelling content can reach organizations who recognize the need to build the data fluency of their teams.”
