“Vera Cruz” is the name of the first solo album recorded with an unprecedented repertoire by Edu Falaschi, singer and songwriter from São Paulo projected in the 2000s as a vocalist for the band Angra, in which he remained until 2012.

The work started recording in November 2020 in Rio de Janeiro and was produced by Edu Falaschi and Roberto Barros and co-produced by Thiago Bianchi. The album features the same Falaschi bandmates who have been with him since the beginning of his solo career: Aquiles Priester, Fábio Laguna, Raphael Dafras, Roberto Barros, and Diogo Mafra.

Brazilian music icon, Elba Ramalho, is one of the special guests of “Vera Cruz” with a more than special duet with Edu Falaschi in the song “Rainha do Luar”. Reinforcing the guest list, the album features the legendary vocalist and guitarist Max Cavalera (Soulfly / Cavalera Conspiracy / Killer Be Killed / Go Ahead and Die), who is present on the track “Face of the Storm”.

Set between Brazil and Portugal at the time of the discovery of the island of Vera Cruz by the Portuguese colonizers, the novel is the motto of the creation of the authorial repertoire composed by Falaschi, the concept of the lyrics was created by Edu Falaschi and developed by Fabio Caldeira. The orchestrations of the album were initially idealized by Edu Falaschi and produced, created, and finished by Pablo Greg. The album art and all the products associated with “Vera Cruz” were conceived by “digital designer” Carlos Fides.

“Vera Cruz” was mixed and mastered in Europe by the legendary producer Dennis Ward (Angra, Helloween, Pink Cream 69, Unisonic). “Being able to be with Dennis again is extremely exciting, being with him again brought me many beautiful memories and he knows exactly what I like in terms of sonority, not to mention that he has an absurd good taste for mixing”, says Edu about working with Dennis Ward.
