Global is pleased to announce the launch of its new Productivity Suite Assessment, a consulting service that helps small and midsize businesses

(SMBs) determine which productivity suite best meets their needs and how to fully utilize the suite to improve productivity and support business goals. Whether considering, or currently using Microsoft 365 or Google Workspace, the productivity suite is the foundation for IT services. The right match is about more than the marketing hype and basic features. The right match integrates with how you work and other systems to support business goals, needs, priorities, and budget.

"For businesses not yet in the cloud, we guide them to the best fit and solution," stated Allen Falcon, CEO of Cumulus Global. "For those only using some of the Microsoft and Google suite services, we help them fully adopt, utilize, and leverage capabilities."

The Productivity Suite Assessment gives businesses: A comprehensive review of current technology platforms and how well they are serving the business; Expert analysis of challenges, gaps, and opportunities to improve productivity and efficiencies; Recommendations: "what" technologies are a best fit and "how" to leverage them for greatest impact and value; and Savings on implementation of recommendations.

"We help businesses decide if Microsoft 365 or Google Workspace best aligns with their operations and technologies. More impactfully, we identify under-utilized capabilities and guide adoption," noted Falcon. "Using these recommendations, businesses improve processes, empower employees and teams, reduce costs, and enable growth."

The Productivity Suite Assessment follows Cumulus Global's best-practice methods. The three phase project includes: detailed discovery, thorough analysis; and recommendations with guidance on implementation and adoption. Cumulus Global partners with both Microsoft and Google, providing objective analysis and recommendations. Founded in 2006, Cumulus Global has 15 years experience delivery cloud solutions to small and midsize businesses.
