A new blog site filled with photography and graphic design trends and tips from fine arts aficionado Ram Chary Everi will soon be upgraded due to achieving immense popularity online in recent weeks, according to Everi.

The new blog website can be accessed at <https://ramcharyeveri.wordpress.com>. The purpose of the website is to show readers how to tap into the booming hobby and career areas of photography and graphic design, as well as learn the latest in these fields. Due to the great reception of the site's content up to now, Everi, a leading graphic designer and photographer, said he plans to update the website in June to provide even more value for his website's fans.

On the current version of the website, readers can discover how to get an excellent start in the photography field, which includes mastering the art and science of post-processing, lighting, and composition, for example. They can also discover how to perfect this craft from the comfort of their own homes. For instance, readers should learn how to concentrate on just one object, as well as experiment with their gear's settings when they are not out and about capturing images on screen.

With regard to graphic design, readers can find out how to develop the perfect logo for an individual or business. For instance, Everi emphasizes the importance of making logos that are memorable, simple, and versatile. Everi also highlights the many benefits of studying graphic design, which include the numerous job opportunities in the field, as well as the ability to motivate people to action through graphic design.

All in all, Everi said he hopes his website will continue to help budding artists to excel in the photography and graphic design fields. He also wishes to encourage more people to explore these fields and ultimately experience its many benefits in the months and years ahead.
